

ABSTRACT

A mobile communication device allowing data to be stored and programs to be delivered with safety is disclosed.

The mobile communication device is detachably connected to a card having at least an encryption key generator therein. The 5 encryption key generator generates an encryption key using a predetermined code. Encryption of data to be stored in the memory and decryption of encrypted data stored in the memory are performed using the encryption key received from the card.

7040512-05234363